MIX & MATCH YOUR WAY TO PERFECTION

Whether you choose the clean lines of stoneware or the unique colors of durable melamine, this year is all about interesting tablescapes. Mix and match complementary tones, textures, and shapes to create a look that is uniquely tailored to your atmosphere and menu.

Each dish you serve is carefully planned in the kitchen, and giving that same thoughtful attention to what it is being served on further highlights your creativity in the eyes of your customers.

Everything from fine dining to fast casual will look stunning on flat, simple plates that let the food be the star. Earth tones and soft colorways in dinnerware serve as a natural-looking backdrop that really makes the food stand out, especially recipes with bright, contrasting colors from fruits and vegetables. Finish off the look by pairing with unique flatware and visually-interesting glassware for an eclectic tabletop to convey an inviting sense of comfort and relaxation to your guests.

VINTAGE & NOSTALGIA

NEW TWISTS ON OLD FAVORITES

Espresso martinis, sun dried tomatoes, lunch box snack cakes: recipes, ingredients, and childhood treats from the not-so-distant past have been making their way onto menus in various forms. Just like with fashion, cultural tastes and food trends are cyclical, and the 80's and 90's are having their time in the spotlight. Retro desserts like Baked Alaska are getting a modern update by creative pastry chefs, and throwback cocktails are all the rage. Whether you recreate a gourmet version of a classic or put your own take on it (non-dairy options are a huge hit right now), customers are delighted by the nostalgia of seeing and tasting a dish they associate with childhood or young adulthood.

Hand in hand with nostalgic menu trends is the draw towards vintage glassware and dinnerware. Even if you're serving up modern mixology and the finest of French cuisine, using pieces that look like they're from less modern times provides a delightful contrast to new tastes and techniques.

VISIBLE CLEANLINESS

SHOW US YOUR CLEAN

One lasting effect from the coronavirus pandemic is the increased awareness of sanitation and cleanliness in public spaces. For many customers choosing to dine out, a restaurant simply passing their health inspection is not enough. While the commitment to food safety procedures and general sanitation will always be forefront to operators, it is important to be aware that patrons, now more than ever, want to actually see what is being done to keep an establishment safe.

If you have an open kitchen, make sure it is organized in a thoughtful and tidy way. Make sure any cleaning supplies you use in the front or back of house are not overly worn out or faded, as this may make customers think they are not sanitary. Switching to using touchless, electronically-operating faucets not only helps reduce the risk of germ transmission, but the lack of handles also gives you one less thing to worry about sanitizing.

TIKTOK

THE NEWEST TREND IN SOCIAL MEDIA MARKETING

With well over 70 million users in the United States alone, TikTok is the newest social media app rising in popularity. Young and old alike watch to be entertained by the creativity of others, connect with like-minded communities, explore topics that interest them, and discover new experiences and places.

Restaurants and chefs are using the platform to give viewers a behind-the-scenes look at their craft. Everything from showing how their signature menu items are made to demonstrating basic cooking techniques makes for mouth-watering content with the potential to attract new customers. It's also a great way to tell the story or history of your brand—anything to show what makes your place special and worth a visit.

The potential power of views, by the numbers:

- 36% of TikTok users have visited or ordered food from a restaurant after seeing a TikTok video about the restaurant
- 55% of users visited a restaurant from TikTok simply because the food looked appetizing, and 51% visited because of a unique menu item
- 20% of users have visited a restaurant in a different city based on videos posted on TikTok, and 52% report that while they haven't yet, they are likely to do so in the future
- 45% of users said they'd be willing to travel out-of-state for a restaurant they saw on the platform

Trade Secrets

As foodservice professionals, we sometimes forget the novelty of working with specialized equipment. Giving customers a behind-the-scenes look at how you make certain menu items and at the equipment you use daily may seem like nothing. But to someone who doesn't know how huge a commercial mixer really is in person, or all the steps it takes to make that perfect latte, getting an insider's glimpse into your trade can make them more motivated to come in and experience what you sell in person.

CATERING REIMAGINED

A FOCUS ON SANITATION AND ORGANIZATION

Now that larger, in-person events are starting to become commonplace again, operators are rethinking how they are serving food. Hand-in-hand with the Visible Cleanliness trend is an enhanced consumer awareness about the potential health risks for self-serve buffet setups. That doesn't mean buffets and drop-off catering can't or shouldn't happen, just that they may need an extra level of attention to detail.

For off-site events, a portable handwashing station that doesn't require access to plumbing is an important addition. Even if there are indoor sinks available, setting up a place for guests to wash their hands before approaching a serving line can help reduce the potential for germ transfer.

Portable induction ranges allow you to set up action stations with cook-to-order food instead of only having traditional self-serve stations. Keeping any grab-and-go areas tidy and organized in nice, clean-looking displays will give customers additional peace of mind.

TAKE-OUT & DELIVERY

KEEP UP WITH THE DEMAND

There is no doubt that take-out and delivery are lasting trends, and luckily there are innovative products that can help support your carryout program. Reusable, eco-friendly containers give a better perceived value to customers than disposables, and may also be more cost effective, without sacrificing food quality. Countertop cooking and holding equipment can allow you to set up separate stations for to-go orders, rather than slowing down your main line during times where both carryout and dine-in orders are high.

Setting up dedicated areas and equipment for packaging and holding carryout orders is also a great way to help ensure customer satisfaction: Staying organized means fewer errors and confusion. Establishing a clearly marked area where customers and delivery drivers pick up orders will also free up your front of house staff to better focus on their dine-in customers.
